NATIONAL TEACHERS ISSUE DECLARATION.

Concluding Session of the Convention Devoted to an Announcement of Principles.

BIG BUILDING FOR THE FAIR.

Committee Decides That the Educational Building at the St. Louis Exposition Should Be a Very Large One.

Detroit, July 12.-The National Educational Association to-night, at the last session of its fortieth annual convention, adopted a declaration of principles declaring that the problem of elementary education is the most important one with which the State must deal. The work of the Bureau of Education, under Commissioner William T. Harris, was indorsed, and the association eclared that its powers should be extended so that it should have jurisdiction over edu cational matters in all of our new posses-sions. Compulsory educational laws and the consolidation of rural schools were indorsed and State support of institutions for the training of teachers is recommended.

rary Schools." He said, in part:

Agriculture is a science, whose study takes people out of doors, There is a growing tendency in our schools to adopt the sedentary life of the literary man. Too much we are leading the children to think the wisdom is found only at the desk of the literary fellow. Too many children there whose school training is mainly an effort to give them the ability to apprehend what was in the mind of the author of the so-called literary masterpiece. We work laboriously, to teach them to say "Think by thoughts after thee, Oh, De Quincy," instead of leading them where they joyously can say, "I think thy thoughts after thee, oh, God."

The average child comes to school all saturated with Nature—all alive to its every chanse, and eager for its wonderful and delightful story, instead of teaching him along the lines of his experience, we turn him in the direction of literature and myth and fairy mysticism, thereby nullifying all the apperceptive capital he has previously accumulated. We do not object to this literary matter in toto, but we do object to this literary matter in toto, but we do object to this literary matter in toto, but we do object to this literary matter in toto, but we do object to this literary matter in toto, but we do object to this literary in the order of the starting and we think the teaching of agriculture offers satisfactory supplement to it.

FORECASTER HOPES FOR COOLER DAYS.

No Radical Change in Outlook-Highest Temperature Yesterday Was 101.

No signs of a radical change in the torrid weather have appeared on the official morizon, but Forecaster Hyatt believes that conditions in and about St. Louis will soon resolve themselves into slightly cooler weather.

The barometric conditions have changed little in the last three days, and until the area of high barometer which envelops the Central and Southern Mississippi Valley is pushed away St. Louisans can scarcely hope for rain or a decided drop in temper-

As Doctor Hyatt had predicted, the early part of Thursday night was cool, but beginning at 10 o'clock Thursday night the therometer rose steadily until midnight, when it registered 84. Yesterday, however, was not so hot as Thursday, although the general opinion prevalled that another record was broken yesterday afternoon. The highest temperature yesterday was 101, regis-tered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, as against 104 for the same time Thursday. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the mercury reached 100, and shortly after 3 o'clock fell

Says MacArthur Was His Subordi nate-No Friction Possible. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
Chicago, Ill., July 12.—General Elwell S.

Otis, at present commanding the Depart-ment of the Lakes, denies that there was any friction between himself and General ment of the Lakes, denies that there was any friction between himself and General MacArthur during the former's command of the army in the Philippines.

During the interview General Otis talked with some warmth and expressed himself as being disgusted that the affair had gained so much credence.

"There was no friction between General MacArthur and myself." he declared. "General MacArthur was a subordinate officer, and how could there be any friction between a subordinate and his superiors? "I declined to act on his amnesty proposition, as well as declaring Filipinos who killed American soldiers murderers, but do not remember the exact words. I might have told him no further advice was desired by the commanding General. The facts advanced by General MacArthur had already been considered. "In the matter of two officers recommended for promotion, I think I used no unnecessary harshness in declining to act in accordance with General MacArthur's recommandications."

HIGGINSVILLE TWINS ARE 78 YEARS OLD TO-DAY.

BENJAMIN M. HUTCHASON. JOSEPH U. HUTCHASON. Twins of Higginsville, Mo., who will celebrate to-day the seventy-eighth anniversary of their birth.

Benjamin M. and Joseph U. Hutchason, twins, who live at Higginsville, Mo., will celebrate to-day the seventy-eighth anniversary of their birth. Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren will offer congratulations.

The brothers were born July 13, 1823, at Greensburg, Green County, Ky., and are so alike in dress, speech and manner that their townsmen and friends are continually mistaking one for the other. When one of the brothers appears alone on the street, none but an intimate friend can tell whether it is Benjamin or Joseph.

The brothers married in the same month of the same year, eleven children were born to each and nine children of each family are now living. Both became engaged at the same time, and each set his vedding date, unknown to the other, for June 13. When the incident was discovered Joseph changed his wedding day to June 3. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin M. Hutchason celebrated their golden wedding anniversary three years ago to-day.

The old gentlemen are in excellent health and are quite active. Both are stanch the last twenty years.

GRAND JURY FINALLY INDICTS MRS. BONINE.

She Is Held Responsible for Killing James Seymour Ayres in His Room at Kenmore Hotel.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Washington, July 12.-The Grand Jury this afternoon reported an indictment for murder against Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine, holding her responsible for the killing of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., on May 15, while the parties were in the room assigned to Ayres at the Kenmore Hotel. The Grand Jury holds that Mrs. Bonine feloniously, willfully and of her malice killed young Ayres. The reporting of the indictment against Mrs. Bonine was attended with as much interest as was manifested the day the defendant appeared in court, seeking release on ball. Of course, she was not present today, although Attorney Fulton of her counsel was among the spectators.

At the opening of the fall term of the court, next October, a date will probably be fixed for the trial of Mrs. Bonine under he indictment, Mr. Bonine, when seen this afternoon, said that both he and his wife are very much disappointed by the action of the Grand Jury, although they have been told all along by their counsel to exact an interest of Epworth Leaguers now here, en route all along by their counsel to expect an in-

In regard to the coming trial, Mr. Bonine said it was a matter they had not yet con-sidered. They had been awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. He commented on the length of time it had taken that body to consider the evidence, and said he could not tell what move would be made next by the defense, whether or not an early trial would be asked for, or any other detail. The only comment as to how Mrs. Boniue received the news of her indictment was that she was greatly disappointed. This afternoon Attorneys Douglas and Fulton, of counsel for Mrs. Bonine, stated they were decidedly of the opinion that they were decidedly of the opinion that there was not sufficient evidence upon which to base an indictment and that if it took the Grand Jury six weeks to pass upon the question of her probable guilt there was reason to believe that, when her side of the case is fully presented, her acquittal must follow.

The chances are that counsel for Mrs. Bonine will demur to the indictment rendered to-day before the case comes to trial, on the ground that the Grand Jury reporting the bill was not constituted according to law.

Before the Grand Jury was excused to-day it was stated in open court that Juror Steele had accepted a position under the Government. Justice Hagner thereupon excused Mr.

Justice Hagner thereupon excused Mr. Steele from further service, on the ground that he was ineligible for jury service, being an employe of the Government.

Counsel seem to think that if Mr. Steele was ineligible under the law for jury service to-day, his indorsement of the report of the Grand Jury was also invalid.

PRAYERS ANSWERED PROMPTLY

Baptist Minister Wanted a Real Storm and Got It.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL,
Macon, Mo., July 12.—"One of the most remarkable answers to prayer in time of drought that ever came under my observation," said the Reverend F. N. Atkin of Leavenworth, Kas., who is visiting friends in Macon this week, "occurred fifteen years ago in Buleson County, southeast of Central Texas. The summer had been unusually dry, and crops were burning up badly. Stock water was running out and the situation was even worse than it is now. I was then in charge of a church at Bryan, in Brazos County, just north of Burleson. Well, the Methodists, Baptists and Christians organized a joint meeting to pray for rain. People attended by thousands. There was nothing doing on the farm, and they could readily spare the time. The Methodist minister led off with a conservative supplication for refreshing showers, if it be the divine will. The Christian minister was a little more urgent, and gave the Creater. REPUBLIC SPECIAL supplication for refreshing showers, if it be the divine will. The Christian minister was a little more urgent, and gave the Creator a minute description of the sufferings of the people. The Baptist minister then took charge and made the 'closing argument for the people.' He didn't want any little 'refreshing showers' or 'light sprinkles'; that might do very well for 'Methodists and Campbeillites,' but the Baptists wanted something more. He said while the Lord was about it he might just as well give 'em a regular deluge, and several of them; he did'nt care how much water came down; the more the better; he could swim and so could his parishioners; what he wanted was a genuine old-fashioned 'trash lifter and guilly washer,' and he wanted it in a hurry. The big congregation seemed to rather approve of the last speaker's sentiments more than the others, and when he sat down to mop his brow they cheered him.

"Before the meeting adjourned dark clouds berny to see her in the south and

"Before the meeting adjourned dark clouds began to gather in the south and west, and before many had reached home they were overtaken by such a wind and rainstorm as few had ever seen. That night the wind blew the Baptist minister's church over into a field and totally destroyed it. I think, however, the farmers attributed the salvation of the growing crops to his effort more than any one else, and came down with the money to enable his congregation to construct a new place of worship.

Mississisppi has not made an exhibit at an exposition since the New Orleans Exposition in the early eightles, and in the past there has been considerable severe censure of the laggardness of the commonwealth in this respect. The dawn of the new commercial era, however, is carrying with it a spirit of industrial progress among the people, and there is a marked tendency manifest to herald the State's resources abroad and to encourage the investment of capital in this section.

One of the principal features of the Missispipi exhibit at the St. Louis Fair will be textile manufacturing. During the past two years there has been a great boom in cotton factory building, and within the next few years nearly every town of 2,000 population and over will have at least one cotton factory, with facilities adequate for the consumption of all the raw product grown in that section. Some of the new factories are now turning out a quality of goods equal in factory, with facilities adequate for the consumption of all the raw product grown in that section. Some of the new factories are now turning out a quality of goods equal in texture to any of the cloths produced at the large Eastern mills. The cotton factory boom promises to be greatly accelerated by the establishment of the new textile school, which has been founded for the purpose of educating the youth of the State in the art of manufacturing cotton goods and the management of factories.

Another interesting exhibit will be that of the timber resources. Mississippi is now conceded to be the lumber center of the South, and it is estimated that the forests of the celebrated long-leaf yellow pine in the southern part of the State are sufficient to furnish the entire world with this class of timber for a century to come. The State also has many varieties of hardwoods, which are being eagerly sought after by the large manufacturing concerns of the North and East, and the price of timber lands has advanced rapidly during the past year, while the demand continues unlimited.

Already candidates are in the field for the position of Commissioner to the St. Louis Exposition, and the names of quite a number of distinguished citizens have been suggested in connection with the honor. It is very likely that the place will be given to some man who is thoroughly familiar with the State's resources and has been closely identified with the progress of the Commonwealth, and liberal assistance will be given him in the preparation of a fitting exhibit.

He said that Abraham Manbeimer, who lives near the Rossmans, had complained to Watchman Sites, saying his little child had nearly been run over. He spoke of the matter to Mr. Rossmann and the latter promised to keep the children off the walk with their wheels. When I think the officer did his duty." Captain Campbell testified that the officer was perfectly justified in calling the patrol wagon. Private Watchman Sites named many complaints made to him about children riding on the walk. Other witnesses said they saw the officer exhibit no unnecessary harshness. A witness, named Quarles, stated that he had seen a man iding twenty-five miles an hour on the sidewalk in that neighborhood.

"Children ride two and three abreast of the sidewalks in that neighborhood. It is dangerous. The officer did his duty."
